

CNETNetworks®

March 10, 2005

via fax: [REDACTED]

Attn: [REDACTED]

Re: Notice and Takedown request under the Digital Millennium Copyright Act, Section 512(c)(3)

I am a legal counsel for CNET Networks, Inc. ("CNET"), which owns numerous Internet sites, including CNET News.com ("news.com"). We have recently learned that your company, Google, Inc., is posting on your site www.google.com certain copyrighted content from news.com. Our copyrighted material can be found here: <http://groups-beta.google.com/group/GrassrootsHope/msg/7e44ea58623e8c03>

The copyrighted work that we believe has been infringed upon can be found here:

http://news.com.com/The+coming+crackdown+on+blogging/2008-1028_3-5597079.html

Pursuant to the Digital Millennium Copyright Act ("DMCA"), we are writing to provide you notice of your illegal activities and copyright infringement. Acting as an agent on behalf of News.com, I have a good faith belief that use of news.com's copyrighted material described above on the allegedly infringing webpages in this manner is not authorized by us, our agent, or the law.

CNET respectfully asks that you remove all content and materials from your web site that was copied from news.com. Please confirm you have ceased all acts of infringement and destroyed all infringing materials by the close of business on Friday, March 18, 2005.

I swear, under penalty of perjury, that the information in this notification is accurate, that CNET is the intellectual property (copyright) owner of our material and that I am authorized to act on behalf of CNET and news.com.

Sincerely,

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
email: [REDACTED]@cnet.com