Dear Sir or Madam,

Following the instructions outlined in your e-mail on 12 July 2005, I hereby lodge a notice of copyright infringement on Blogger.

The blog site in question is <http://universityguide.blogspot.com/>.

A significant number of articles on this blog site were plagiarised directly from our Good Universities Guide. Our publication has been published annually (continually) for 13 years. I have included a copy of a recent edition of The Guide as proof of copyright ownership and would be prepared to provide you with earlier editions upon request.

Also included are screen dumps of the offending articles we request you remove from Blogger. When you compare these to the content in our book, the source is obvious.

Further, in line with your instructions I declare that:

I have a good faith belief that use of the copyrighted materials described above on the allegedly infringing web pages is not authorised by the copyright owner, its agent, or the law.

I swear, under penalty of perjury, that the information in the notification is accurate and that I am the copyright owner or am authorised to act on behalf of the owner of an exclusive right that is allegedly infringed.

I trust that I have provided you enough information to have the material removed. Please do not hesitate to contact me should you require further clarification.

Yours sincerely,
